

Reflect upon the experience of using CBR's (Calculator Based Rangers) to explore rate of change. In particular:

- What did you learn or what connections did you make about rate of change?
- How do activities such as this promote a conceptual understanding of function?
- Would this activity or some version of the activity be valuable for your students? If no, explain why not. If yes, how would you implement it?